Why pre school?

Many parents have this question - "Why is it necessary to send a child to a pre-school?"

Pre-school has become a key stage in the development of a child for the following reasons:

- The child gets into the discipline of attending a school. This makes the transition into a formal school much easier both for the child as well as the parent.
- The child learns to interact with other children.
- There is development of the child's gross and fine motor skills leading to better physical and motor development of the child.
- It has been proven scientifically that children absorb more at an early age.
- The child learns the basics of reading, writing and maths. Hence, it is much easier for a child who has attended pre-school to get admission into a formal school.
